We may have courage, all of us, To start at honor's call, To meet a loc, protect a friend,

To show the world one hero lives, The foremost in the fight— But do we always manifest The courage to do right?

To answer No! with steady breath,
And quick unfaltering tongne.
When flerce temptation, ever near,
Her Syren song has sung!
To care not for the bantering tones
The jest, or studied slight:
Content if we can only have
The courage to do right?

To step aside from fashion's course,

Or custom's lavored plan; To plack an outcast from the street, Or help a fellow man? If not then let us nobly try, Henceforth, with all our might, In every case to muster up The courage to do right! HOME MISSION.

Bribery by Kissing.

From the New York Times.

During the recent campaign a Brooklyn girl wrote a letter to General Garfield, in which she said: "To-night I bought a vote. Guess how! I promised to kiss the gentieman every day for a year, and two other of my friends have given up the Democratic ticket for ten kises apiece. I shall be very much surprised if you are not elected."

What reply Gen. Garfield made to this pleasant bit of information is not known, but there is no record that he rebuked the young lady for her personal canvass in his behalf, or that he even discountanced the use of her went away he declared that he would well. The cause of the irritation there was found in the upper part of the lung a live striped frog of ordinary size.

Ejeven children at four births was the feat of Mrs. Scannel Hickson, of Shamrock, Mo. First birth, three; second and third, two each, and at the last interesting occasion there were four, all the latter being alive and doing well. Ten out of the eleven are alive. In Richmond, Va., an old colored woman has been going to the depot daily for many years to meet the incoming trains, looking for a letter containing $25. After the war she did the washing for a soldier, and when he went away he declared that he would even discountanced the use of her charms in such a liberal manner to enhance the success of the Republican in a letter.

Looking at the matter in its purely legal aspect, it is certain that if the transaction is illigal there is no legal method of stopping it. That has already been de-cided in the Scotch case of McTavish vs. McTavish. It was a contest for a

Parliamentary seat, and the children of the defendant were accused of buying votes with kisses. One of the Mc-Tavish girls, a buxom, strapping wench, testified on the stand that she had "kissed the whull toon," and as and was determined to see that the votes which she had bought were de-livered, she kept a list of the recipients of her favors. The list was produced and the first name was that of the

was the complainant's wife, who fainted dead away on the spot. This ended the reading of the list. The Judges thought that this species of bribery was so common that it would be unfair to single out one case for censure. It will be remembered that the young woman says in her letter; "I shall be very much surprised if you're not elected." Now, she only bought three votes, one for 365 kisses and two for ten kisses apiece. These certainly could not elect Gen. Garfield or even inspire her with confidence that he would be elected. It follows that she must have known of other cases of a similar kind in New York and Brooklyn, and she may even have been a member of some secret organization banded together to corrupt the ballot box by this insidious and highly reprehensible practice, which the most superficial observer will see is fraught with danger to republican institutions, and is one of those secret, behind the door machinations calculated to undo the best laid schemes of the most astute pollticians. The large increase of the Republican vote in New York and Brooklyn is also strongly corroborative testimony to the existence of such a Brooklyn is also strongly corroborative testimony to the existence of such a deep laid plot, by no means confined to the one girl who laid her charms upon the altar of her country and willingly sacrificed her favors for votes. If Barnum and Hewitt and the rest of the Democratic gang who are howling fraud so lustily will go to work and apprehend this dangerous creature and set their detectives to work to find the other nefarious wretches who thus boldly set their faces against the foe, they may possibly discover the real fraud that was practiced. In any event if Gen. Garfield does not reward his degrees below.

This is the coldest November in the memory of the oldest settler in Colorado. On the 18th the mercury went as low as 26 degrees below zero. The report of the United States Signal Service shows the minimum thermometer to have been 13 degrees below, and the maximum for twenty-four hours 7 degrees above. At 9 o'clock in the morning on the 17th the mercury indicated lits splendor during the entire day, and not a weft of cloud was to be seen. At 8 o'clock the mercury had dropped to 15 degrees below. brooklyn is also strongly corroborative Gen. The prurient prudes and stern moralists and persons past kissable age will unquestionably regard the action of this young woman as a species of bribery and as illegal trafficing in votes, though we are not aware that there is any statute that can send the briber to duce as evidence that he has been brided, but in this case there is nothing that may be found upon the person of the party of the second part, nothing that he can show in court to prove the guilt of the party of the first part. If anything is conveyed it certainly disappears in the very act of conveyance, and it even makes no difference how many times the bride is proffered and accepted. There is evidently no consideration in the transaction. It is

There was certainly nothing underhanded, or sneaking, or behind the back, as in the case of ordinary bribing, where a vote is bought with money, for the parties to the bribe had to transact their little operation face to face. The Press and John Sherman From the Ohio State Journal (Rep.) The sentiment is universal on the part of the Republican press of Ohio, and well nigh universal throughout the N. Y. Evening Post.—Senator Blaine says truly that to create life Senators would be to violate that piedge of the Constitution which secures to each give expression to that sentiment, and some weeks ago it was taken to task some weeks ago it was taken to task for expressing it out of season.
